Course schedule (how it was organised): The weekly schedule had been shared with us before the program started. Unfortunately, the course description on the website differed from reality, and no street interviews with strangers were carried out. Although the course was not as technical, it gave me a lot of inspiration and ideas on how to communicate with people, especially those from different cultures. I had the chance to see things from various perspectives, which provided me with valuable insights into how to manage my team and engage in international cooperation.

Spare time: City tours as well as various cultural and sports activities were organised by EDA, and I took part in some of them. However, since there were so many participants, it was almost impossible to meet the same people again, which made the enthusiasm for joining the activities a bit lower. I spent some time with the students from my course, also enjoyed some free time on my own, had the chance to see tourist spots, and try the local food. Additionally, I was able to meet friends from previous projects.

Overall Evaluation: The course was truly inspiring, I gained a lot of insights that I will surely implement in my daily work. I also met wonderful and inspiring people and had the chance to share our experiences and stories.
